Cities go begging; county says 'maybe'

BY MARY G. SEILEY
The cities of Waveland and Bay St. Louis sought county funding Wednesday for major waterfront improvement projects, but left the Board of Supervisors meeting empty-handed.

Bay St. Louis officials are asking that the county help pick up part of the $690,000 tab for renourishing the downtown beach. Waveland, meanwhile, was looking for help with a $350,000 boat ramp and pier extension project at Coleman Avenue.

Bay St. Louis is expected to act on the beach renourishment project in a meeting tonight. Last week, the city received a low bid of $561,418 for pumping a new sand beach in the area between Bookter Street and Bay View Court.

With engineering and inspection fees and contingencies, the project totals some $690,000, Mayor Eddie Favre said in a letter to Board President Michael Ladner.

"It is no secret that the city of Bay St. Louis was concerned from the outset with the fact that the area north of Washington Street was left out of the original renourishment project," Favre stated. "It was out of that concern that we have taken it upon ourselves to keep that portion of the plan on the drawing board," he added.

The mayor said that stretch of seawall is "in the most need of protection," and the new downtown beachfront that will be created "will undoubtedly be the most valuable."

Last summer, the county renourished the beachfront between Washington Street in Bay St. Louis and Dane Street in Waveland. The project was funded with collections from a countywide gasoline tax.

On the eve of that project, Bay St. Louis officials scrambled to tag onto the county's construction contract, extending the renourishment northward from Washington Street. Before arrangements could be made for that extension, however, the contractor finished the county project and pulled out of town.

Favre said the low bid recently received by the city for the proposed renourishment extension is a "bargain, in terms of anticipated costs."

Still, he said, "to put it simply, your help is necessary" to finance the project.

Shooting at park mars quiet weekend

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
A relatively quiet long Fourth of July weekend was shattered by gunfire at Buccaneer Park's day area on Tuesday, Waveland Police Chief Varnell said Wednesday.

Two warrants have been issued for suspects in the shooting, which involved some 15 to 20 rounds being fired, Varnell said.

"It is just a miracle no one was shot, as the place was just full of people. There were hundreds of people," Varnell said. Indications were that a group from Pearl River County was having a picnic at the park when a group from Bay St. Louis drove up. Several got out of a vehicle and started firing, as everyone hit the ground searching for cover, Varnell said.

The incident occurred at 4:15 p.m. July 4.

Investigations revealed that the groups have fought before, Varnell said.

"We checked with Pearl River authorities, and they tell us the names we submitted to them were members of a gang in that county," Varnell said.

The only reported injury was a Pearl River group member, who was in a car, and suffered a cut finger when the rear window was shattered by gun fire.

Drug test in future for Waveland employees

BY RICHARD MEEK

Waveland city employees may soon be required to submit to random drug testing, Mayor John Mason said Wednesday.

Mason said the city is investigating the feasibility of instituting a testing policy for all employees, including firemen and policemen.

"I think (testing) is a good idea," Mason said.

"We have not yet had a problem, but we do have people operating heavy machinery."

"And we have policemen carrying firearms. We want to know if they are under the influence of drugs or alcohol. If they are, they are putting the city at risk."

New sewer repair

Bay St. Louis city official Ron Vanney inspects an innovative method of sewerage repair used at the corner of Dunbar and Ulman in Bay St. Louis. The method allows for the manufacture of new pipe without actually digging out the old pipe. A soft tube is pumped onto the old pipe. Hot water is then squirted in, which hardens the tube in the shape of the old pipe. The process was developed by Insituform, a Louisiana company. (Echo staff photo by Richard Meek)

Five more arrested in area roundup

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
Five more arrests have been made since Friday in the Hancock County Drug Task Force Operation Independence, a roundup of drug dealers.

Terry Eley, task force director said, "We still have two more arrests to make in Operation Independence. We served 18 warrants Friday morning, and the other five were served over the holiday weekend."

Eley listed the following additional names of those being arrested and charged for the alleged sale of a controlled substance:

--Willie Lewis, 31, 610 Herlihy St., Waveland, two counts.

--Larry Joe Lewis, 35, 610 Herlihy St., Waveland, one count.

--Terry Warren, 44, 5225 Highway 90, Bay St. Louis, one count.

--Stanley Garcia, 23, 7078 Road 137, Bay St. Louis, one

--Earl Terry, 27, 504 Amar St., Waveland, one count.

A warrant was served on Earl Terry at the Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility as he was in jail on another charge, Eley said.

Bonds were set at $5,000 on each charge for those arrested, Eley said.

A two-month investigation led to the roundup of those charged with the alleged sale of a controlled substance. The initial phase of Operation Independence took place in the wee hours of Friday when task force members and members of the multi-SWAT team left the Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility with 25 warrants and served 18 before 7 a.m.

Many of those arrested were released on bail, as it was the first time for several to have been arrested, Eley said.

"We feel the expense from a taxpayer's standpoint should come wholly from a wall taxes earmarked for shoreline protection." But Favre said the city is willing to share in the project costs with the county.

Supervisors agreed only to discuss the request further in a meeting next week.

In the Waveland request, board members were asked to dip into the pool of money the county is amassing to build a major new marina facility at Bayou Caddy to help fund a boat ramp project.

The county expects a total of $1 million in state tidelands lease money for the Bayou Caddy project, in addition to some $260,000 escrowed from sale of former marina property.

Representing Waveland's request, Mike Cuevas said the county could share some of the Hancock County tidelands money by backing a Waveland application to the state. While the county has boat ramp facilities in Bay St. Louis and elsewhere in the county, she said, Waveland has none.

The boat ramp project would help revitalize Coleman Avenue, and raise the occupancy level of home rentals in that city she said. "You all understand the situation Waveland is in ... You know we don't have the money to do this kind of project. We are asking you to help us help ourselves."

Cuevas said most of the project's cost would be in hauling rip-rap from Kessler Air Force Base to extend the existing rip-rap road at the foot of Coleman Avenue. A new asphalt road, parking area and boat ramp would be created.

If the county didn't want to divert its marina funding for the project, she said, Waveland would gladly accept money from other county sources such as the seawall tax revenue, she said.

Supervisor Alton A. Kellar said perhaps the county should divert the entire marina project to the Coleman Avenue waterfront. The county hasn't come to terms with either of two property owners whose land is eyed for the Bayou Caddy marina.

Cuevas said, however, the city of Waveland doesn't have such an ambitious project in mind for its waterfront.

Supervisors agreed to consider some type of financial assistance for the boat ramp and pier extension project in its next budget.

In other matters Wednesday, the board agreed to call for bids on an emergency bridge replacement project on Indian Creek Road. That project is estimated at $75,000, and probably will be to be funded entirely by county funds.

County Engineer Lawrence Seal urged the board to proceed with replacing the old bridge, rather than shoring up what's left of the structure. "I'm just afraid of that thing. My personal feeling is I wouldn't want to have county people down there working under that thing ... I'm afraid you'd get somebody killed."

Seal made the comment after Kellar pushed to have the bridge shored up sufficiently to allow school bus traffic across it in the fall. Seal insisted such a project wasn't possible, given the complete deterioration of the bridge. He said the bridge is in such a state of disrepair that it is unsafe to drive across it.

Supervisors agreed to proceed with the project as recommended by Seal, and to pick up the local share for the four other projects.

Officials said two similar projects were approved for Waveland, including repairs to Magnolia Drive and Central Avenue.

Currently, the only city employees subject to testing are those within the gas department, and that is a state mandate, Mason said. The city's policy would be similar to the state's, where an employee would not be pre-notified of the testing.

"There are ways to beat the test if an individual is pre-notified," Mason said.

He said gas employees are chosen at random by their social security numbers. They are not notified until the morning of the testing.

Mason said he has city attorney Ronnie Artigues investigating the legal ramifications of such testing. One major concern, the mayor said, is cost.

"I want to get with (Artigues) and what's involved," Mason said. "We need to find out how much the cost is per person."

He said one tenet of any policy would be that all new employees must submit to a drug test.

Shooting

He was treated by American Medical Response (Mobile Medical) at the scene.

Casings from .45 caliber, .38 caliber and 9 mm were recovered in the area by police.

Waveland officers responding to the incident included Varnell, Investigator James Goss, Patrolmen Jerry Beaugez, Clarence Lick, Gene Boswell and Rene Lick. Waveland's police was assisted by Hancock County Sheriff's deputies.

Other than the shooting incident, Varnell said everything was routine for his department. There were several fender benders, speeding and DUI citations issued for the long weekend.

Editor's note:

At press time Wednesday, Chief Varnell said, "Bradford Laneaux, 18, 1202 Russell Drive, Waveland, was arrested for aggravated assault and has been placed in the Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility in lieu of a $25,000 bond in connection with the July 4th shooting."

The second shooting suspect was scheduled to turn himself in later Wednesday evening, Varnell added.

D'head Community Church opens new building

Sunday, July 16, Diamondhead Community Church will celebrate the completion of its new administration education building. All members and friends of the church are invited to join in the morning worship at 10, followed by a reception in the Fellowship Hall and a tour of the new building.

Diamondhead Community Church was started in 1981 with 67 members. It has grown steadily. In 1991, with a total of 192 members, a larger sanctuary was essential.

During that year the sanctuary was built, and a successful fund drive ensured that the property would be debt free. The prior worship area became Fellowship Hall.

The membership has continued to grow, an associate pastor was added to the staff, adult and adolescent Sunday School classes were formed, and part of Fellowship Hall was partioned for an office and classrooms.

In 1994 it became obvious Fellowship Hall was not large enough to serve both as a center of activity after church and also for classrooms and an office. The decision was made to build another building for the administration and education needs of the church.

That building is complete; landscaping and additional parking spaces remain to be completed later in the summer. The church membership rolls now total 287. Although the church is affiliated with the Presbyterian Church (USA) its members come from all denominations.

CUEVAS QUOTES

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Our area is very popular for holidays, such as July Fourth, because of our numerous water resources. Many of the local residents I talk to tell me they keep their boats in on these holiday weekends because of the increased traffic and lack of concern by some boat operators.

One of the topics of discussion at the Rotary meeting on Wednesday was jet skis. One Rotarian told about how he was traveling down the river a few days ago at 35 mph in his boat when a jet skier passed him like he was sitting still.

The operator could not have been over age 14, he said. Monday morning at 7:30 a.m. I was traveling on North Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis a little past Dunbar Avenue and saw a boat pulling a water skier. As the boat got closer to shore, I realized there was only one person in the boat.

I have read and been told on several occasions there should be a boat operator and an observer when pulling a water skier.

This boat only had the operator and was pulling a water skier. I am told this is very dangerous, and I can see it is dangerous when no one is observing the person on skis, as he could fall and be left in the wake.

Some boat operators and water ski operators take far too many chances.

I know we are already licensed to death in our society, but there are other operator licenses which should be necessary.

I feel it has gotten to the point where one day there will be a required boat operator license, as well as ski operator license required.

Just like drivers licenses, there should be a minimum age requirement.

Just as I had anticipated, our highways and roadways were filled with traffic for the long holiday weekend.

Many parents are leaping with joy at the minimum age of 16 for vehicular licenses. This is a good law change and was necessary. In addition, it is in keeping with the trend of many other states.

People who use our waterways should always observe all water-related laws.

Special equipment is now required on just about any size watercraft.

If you have any questions, I suggest you contact the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary for the exact information.

I hope everyone will have a safe boating season.

Just as I had anticipated, our highways and roadways were filled with traffic for the long holiday weekend.

The business community seemed to have done well, too.

This is good for our economy, as tourism still plays an important role in the economics of our area.

We need to develop every avenue necessary to promote tourism as well as industry for our continued growth as we reach for the 21st century.

FROM THE SENATE

By Senator Trent Lott

Put prisoners to work

Inmates in some prisons in the United States not only have access to cable television, some have their own public access cable channel and produce their own broadcasts from prison.

In too many parts of the country, inmates have regular access to bodybuilding and weightlifting equipment and are afforded areas to play recreational sports, including basketball, football and baseball. They can take instruction in boxing, wrestling, judo and the other martial arts, and they either own or have the use of electronic musical instruments.

It seems to me that in these instances, the convicted criminals are living better than the victims of their crimes. If they average, law-abiding taxpayer has to go to work each day, criminals should at least be required to do the same before having the opportunity to freely enjoy leisure activities.

Five years ago the Congress enacted into law my bill that required all inmates in the federal prison system to work. As a result, all federal inmates are required to work 7.5 hours a day, five days a week, unless they are medically disabled.

U.S. Senator Richard Shelby, my colleague for Alabama, has taken that law a step further. He has introduced in the Senate a bill that establishes a minimum 48-hour-per-week work requirement and a minimum 16-hour-per-week study requirement before inmates may take part in leisure activities such as lifting weights, watching cable television, or playing basketball.

His legislation, which I enthusiastically have joined as an original cosponsor, comes on the heels of last year's disaster-ous crime bill which required states to have in place in their prison facilities an array of questionable, social programs before they could qualify for federal prison construction grants.

The purpose of providing federal prison construction grants to the states was to assist them in building additional space to lock up criminals, especially those hard-core criminals who committed three violent felonies. These grants should never have been conditional on states' turning their prison systems into social experiments to entertain the inmates.

The Shelby bill corrects that situation by stipulating that in order for states to receive prison construction grant monies, they must implement minimal work and study requirements for inmates to complete, prior to providing any prisoner privileges. The type of work and content of study would be left to state prison officials' discretion.

This is a common sense approach to our greatest correctional problem: recidivism, expense and overcrowding. Prisoners should work. Whether cleaning our highways, helping to build new prisons, or working in private enterprise initiatives, they will be contributing to society instead of detracting from it. They should pay the price for their crimes, make restitution to their victims, and be required to help pay the price of their incarceration.

The greatest benefit to be derived from this proposal will be the educated and motivated ex-convict who will be more likely to seek employment and less likely to repeat his or her crimes.

Taylor voted to prohibit flag burning

The U.S. House of Representatives has approved a constitutional amendment to prohibit the burning of the American flag, announced Gene Taylor.

"For the millions of Americans who have fought and died protecting the flag and this great country, the flag doesn't represent a piece of red, white and blue cloth, but the soul of our nation," said Taylor. If uncaring publicity seekers want to burn something, why don't they burn their money.

More than 10 national organizations representing a broad range of interests, such as the National Guard Association of the United States, support the initiative.

As an original cosponsor of the resolution aimed at protecting the flag, Taylor said he was extremely pleased the measure overwhelmingly passed the House.

The resolution, sponsored by Mississippi's Sonny Montgomery and Gerald Solomon of New York calls for a constitutional amendment to allow Congress and the states to pass laws prohibiting flag burning or other physical desecration of the flag.

A constitutional amendment must be approved by two-thirds of the House and Senate and then by three-fourths of the states. Forty-nine state legislatures have passed resolutions asking Congress to pass the amendment.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Mississippi's legal driving age increases to 16 Sept. 1

One of the most important citizen-driven governmental reforms in memory becomes effective Sept. 1. That's when Mississippi, after many years of trying, raises the legal driving age from 15 to 16.

The new law, passed by the 1994 Legislature was the outcome of an effort pushed by a group of private citizens, spearheaded by a Jackson housewife, to raise the legal driving age.

Perhaps it is also noteworthy that Mississippi's existing 15-year-old legal driving age is the lowest in the country, save only Arkansas, which under certain conditions allows 15-year-old drivers.

The national trend is to even raise the driving age in some states as high as 18. Most states now have a 16-year-old limit, but some are at 17.

To my certain knowledge, efforts have been made in the Mississippi Legislature for over 40 years to raise the legal driving age from 15 to 16, but historically they have met defeat because of the opposition of rural lawmakers. I remember back as early as 1950 when agrarian-oriented legislators put a stop to a concerted drive to raise the driving age, contending that it would pull farm kids off of their tractors or hay-balers.

The latent farm influence in the Legislature managed to put into the new 16-year-old driver law an exemption for operating farm vehicles and even road machinery.

The vital stimulus in getting the 1994 Legislature at long last to raise the legal driving age came from a citizens group calling itself the "15-to-16 Task Force," which included representatives of a dozen or more groups concerned with teenage problems, and even some parents of young drivers who had died on both main highways and rural roads.

Coordinating the task force was a Jackson housewife, Jean Medley, herself the mother of two teenagers. In vain, Medley had made almost a single-handed effort to persuade lawmakers in the 1993 session to pass a 16-year-old driving law.

Building upon that experience, she realized it would take help and support of several organizations to ever get lawmakers to move. By the time the 1994 session rolled around, she had the "15-to-16 Task Force" ready to go before legislative committees, button-hole legislators, and to push passage of the long-failed driving age bill. Medley's soft, but persistent persuasion, backed up by facts and experiences, her fellow task force members could relate, paid off in not only getting the bill passed by the House for the first time in history, but also by the Senate.

There had to be some concessions made in getting the bill passed which dulled its teeth in several respects, but by and large it cleared the Legislature in good shape. One of the compromises was to postpone the effective date until Sept. 1, 1995.

That might not have been all bad, because it gave those responsible for its implementation, chiefly the Mississippi

Highway Safety Patrol, time to put the enforcement machinery in place and revise existing regulatory forms and procedures. For several months, the MHSP has been preparing for the impact of the new law, which in several ways represents significant reforms through our society.

Perhaps the major effect is that it is going to help keep more young people in school, and to make progress in school, if they are going to drive. And it is going to mean more parental responsibility for the lives and safety of their children.

"Our overall purpose was to keep these teenagers alive," declared Medley. "One of the most progressive things to come out of the new law is to keep young people in school and in good standing."

Under the law a 15-year-old may get a driving permit for one year, but he or she can only drive if there is a licensed driver 21 or older next to them in the car. Those reaching age 16 in the future, won't automatically get their license unless they can provide proof of having taken driver education as well as passing the MHSP standard test.

If the 16-year-old can't produce the driver education credit, he or she will only get a 30-day practice permit, after which they have to pass the MHSP skills test. Sixteen-year-olds can only get a one-year license, and will be required to furnish necessary documentation they have remained in school in good standing at the end of that year. A four-year license won't be issued until reaching age 18.

Possibly the biggest loophole put into the new law in its passage was the "provision" for 15-year-olds with hardship or necessary work cases to be issued a one-year driver's license. However, in those cases they can only drive between 6 a.m. and 10 p.m.

The hardship, or necessary employment provision, Highway Patrol authorities see, will be the biggest problem in administering the new law. Inquiries are already pouring in from parents asking how their 15-year-old can drive if his job is to chauffeur other children and the family. Ron Ford, head of the MHSP driver services said the problem will be "deciding who is an employer to come under the new law."

Ford says that a pamphlet has been prepared by the Patrol defining how the new law will work that is being made available through patrol license issuing stations. Also, by mid-August, he said, the Patrol will have necessary forms and other documents (prepared with help from the Department of Education) ready for youngsters affected by the new law.

Statistics from the Governor's Highway Safety Program show that 13 15-year-old drivers with 21 passengers were killed in fatal crashes in 1994, down slightly from 1993 when 19 15-year-old drivers and 33 passengers died. Possibly just the emphasis on raising the driving age last year had some effect.

Reader offers praises for Margaret Williamson

Dear Editor,
I am avid reader of the Sea Coast Echo and the Diamondhead newsletter. I especially enjoy the "In & Around Diamondhead" columns by Margaret Williamson.

I have been surprised that no mention has ever been made in either publication of this "good neighbor award" that was given to Ms. Williamson back in February by the Sun Herald. I feel the community should recognize these good folks for their efforts on behalf of their fellow man.

Thank goodness for them in this day and time.

ASK THE V.A.

By Donald Mauffray

We can't treat you,
but we're polite

Any veteran who has applied to VA lately for treatment of a health condition knows that it's a classic good news/bad news situation.

The good news is that VA's "team" concept is working to combat VA's legendary customer-service problems. The American Legion, as well as other veterans organizations, has received numerous calls and letters complimentary to the new VA attitude toward veterans seeking health services. Veterans characterize VA employees as courteous, pleasant and more than willing to listen.

The bad news is that more and more veterans are being turned away — nicely. In spite of a $1 billion increase in its FY95 budget, VA says it simply does not have the funds to treat anyone except veterans with service-connected conditions and those considered "mandatory" because of their incomes.

The Legion hopes to change that. In May, Legion staffers were drafting legislation to be presented to Congress later this year. If passed, the legislation would radically reform veterans' eligibility for VA health care.

The proposed revisions include opening VA to all veterans regardless of their income or whether their illness is service-connected. The new VA, as always, has money. New legislation to broaden VA services depends on guarantees of funding to pay for such broadening. VA is already well behind in inflation curve, its budget growing by just 3 percent each year, while health-care costs soar by 12 percent.

The Legion will propose that VA be allowed not only to collect, but also retain funds it receives for treating Medicare-eligible veterans and those with private medical insurance. Some 60 percent of veterans treated by VA are currently eligible for Medicare.

The new retained revenues also would include prescription co-payments, currently $2 per prescription for a month's supply. Last year, VA was required to return the $9 million it collected in prescription co-payments to the government's general fund.

Disabled vet wins wheelchair games

Joe Williams, a disabled Army veteran from Diamondhead, has won at the 15th National Veterans Wheelchair Games (NVWG) in Atlanta.

The field of more than 500 athletes from 40 states, Puerto Rico and Great Britain makes this the largest wheelchair sports event in the United States.

All athletes are military veterans who use wheelchairs due to spinal-cord impairment, certain neurological conditions, orthopedic amputations or other disabilities.

Williams, 53, is a quadriplegic.

He won a gold medal in bowling.

"First and foremost is to enjoy and have fun," said Williams. "It's a great time to be with friends, and meet new friends, and to be competitive and active in the events."

Athletes at the NVWG compete according to the physical ability, within three divisions — masters (over age 40), open and novice (first-time competitors in wheelchair sports). They also compete within classes according to the level of their physical ability, with three quadriplegic-level classes (IA, IB and IC) and four paraplegic-level or amputee classes (II, III, IV and V).

Williams competed in a Class II in the Masters Division.

The games are sponsored by the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs and the Paralyzed Veterans of America, and are hosted this year by the VA Medical Center in Atlanta. Funded with the help of a host of corporations and service organizations, the event is a showcase for the remarkable athletic abilities and personal achievements of our nation's disabled veterans.

Fertility formula helps soil quality

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Garden plants require 15 different chemical elements in different amounts for good growth. The three main sources for these nutrient elements are air, water and soil, with soil being the largest source. Gardeners increase plant nutrient elements in the soil when they apply fertilizer.

Unfortunately, many gardeners get confused when applying fertilizer. They apply too much, too little or the wrong kind. This doesn't have to happen. By using simple math, gardeners can stop making fertilizer rate mistakes.

The three chemical elements commonly contained in fertilizers are nitrogen (N), phosphorus (P) and potassium (K). Most fertilizers sold contain one, two or all three of these elements. They are represented on the fertilizer container by three numbers. The numbers indicate the percent of the elements in the fertilizer. They are always in the same order, N-P-K.

A fertilizer that contains one element is a single-source fertilizer. Examples are ammonium nitrate, 34-0-0; urea, 46-0-0; superphosphate, 0-20-0; and muriate of potash, 0-0-60.

Ammonium nitrate is 34 percent nitrogen. Muriate of potash is 60 percent potassium.

Mixed fertilizers contain two or three elements. Examples are 13-13-13, 6-8-8, and 0-17-34.

Apply fertilizer to the lawn and garden according to soil test results. County extension agents can give you directions for obtaining a soil sample. After turning in a sample at the county extension office, results will be available in one to two weeks.

The recommendations based on test results are given in pounds of nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium per 1,000 square feet of lawn and garden area. These recommended rates are frequently in the range of 0, 1, 2 or 3 pounds of the three elements.

Gardeners must determine how much of a fertilizer material to apply to provide the recommended pounds of these three elements. Sometimes a single source fertilizer is needed. Sometimes a mixed fertilizer or combination of fertilizers is needed.

First take the pounds of the element recommended and divide it by percent strength of the element in the fertilizer to be used. Then multiply that figure by 100 to get the pounds of fertilizer material to apply.

To supply 1 pound of nitrogen using ammonium nitrate, you would say 1 divided by 34 multiplied by 100, and you'll get 2.94 or about 3 pounds of ammonium nitrate. To supply 1 pound of nitrogen using urea, it would be 1 divided by 46 multiplied by 100 and you'll get 2.17 or about 2 pounds of urea.

Triple 13 fertilizer frequently is used out of frustration and supplies phosphorus and potassium in addition to nitrogen.

Seven and three-fourths pounds of 13-13-13 provides 1 pound of nitrogen and equal amounts of the other two elements. If the recommendation is for nitrogen alone, 13-13-13 is a poor choice of fertilizer to use.

Using this same math, 5 pounds of 0-20-0 fertilizer supplies 1 pound of phosphorus. One and two-thirds pounds of 0-0-60 supplies 1 pound of potassium.

To help in determining the amount of fertilizer to apply, 1 pint of most chemical fertilizers weighs 1 pound. Thus 3 pints of ammonium nitrate supply 1 pound of nitrogen. It takes almost 4 quarts of 13-13-13 to supply 1 pound each of the three elements.

Playful arrest

John Dehuissou, Pass Christian Chief of Police, playfully arrests Dixie White House Nursing Home Administrator Missy Thompson during National Nursing Home Week. Thompson was "locked up" in a makeshift jail until she could raise money for her "bail." The proceeds went to benefit the home.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

It's time to go fishin' y'all. The fishin' this past week can be described in one word, spectac-u-incredible. At least that is the word I have been receiving from the fish camps in the area, and all other saltwater spots, that people usually fish. The exception to these reports is that those people who normally fish in their bath tubs are still not catching any fish, but those people are weird anyway.

The folks from LaFrance Fishing Camp report that they had a bumper crop of fishermen and fish. They attribute all of this action to the fish being big-time hungry and all over the place.

LaFrance reports Half Moon, Grassy Island and the Marsh have been producing all of the fish action you might want, or need, on live shrimp under a popping cork.

Live shrimp are plentiful at their camps, but you gotta' use special care to keep them alive for any period of time. Remember to keep the water cool and well aerated.

Another tip I forgot to mention is that the less you handle the live shrimp the longer they will stay alive. So, a small bait net is well worth the trouble in the effort to keep your live shrimp live.

Bordage Fish Camp reports more fishermen than he has seen in a "month of Sundays" this past week. Virtually all fishermen have returned to his dock with fish. Most of the fish were caught in the early morning hours with the mid-day period being very slow.

Tommy Bordage said he thinks the slow fishin' mid-day period has something to do with the heat. It seems the fish can't find enough oxygen in the shallow waters when the outside temperature is 150 degrees (at least that is how hot it feels). When it gets this hot the fish tend to find a nice cool spot in deep water and lie nice and quiet. This sounds just like people.

Wade fishin' is producing some nice fish in the early morning and the late afternoons. Remember that you gotta' go out to the last sand bar in water at least three feet deep to have any chance at all of catching any fish. A rule of thumb is that you gotta' go out deep enough to feel cool water on your feet and lower legs.

The best wade fishing spots have been the areas around

Jubilee Casino in front of Bucaneer Park, Munroe Pier and by the artesian well on North Beach Boulevard.

Best bait is still live shrimp and live mullet.

This month the Commission of Marine Resources is scheduled to vote on the new rules on speckled trout that have been proposed by DMR Chief of Saltwater Fisheries Fred Deegen. The new rules will be a limit of 10 speckled trout per day and the elimination of the current provision of five trout between 12 and 14 inches. The current law says you can keep five trout of a "minimum length" of 12 inches in your daily bag limit of 25 trout.

If you keep your five trout of 12 inches, the balance of the trout in your daily bag limit must be over 14 inches. I hasten to point out that nowhere in the current rule does it say that you can keep trout under 12 inches in length.

In 1992 BMR proposed that only trout over 14 inches could be kept by fishermen. Some 3,000 fishermen signed petitions in 1992 saying if no fish under 14 inches were allowed to be kept, it would effectively close down wade fishing. The current law took 3,000 signatures on petitions and a lot of hard conscientious work by Rep. Compretta and others to force the five 12-inch trout rule into law.

Here we are four years later, and the Department wants to close down wade fishing once again.

At the one and only public hearing held by the DMR, their own biologists said the average fisherman catches six trout, and five of those trout are under 14 inches. If the new rule goes into effect, you will only be able to keep trout 14 inches and larger. This means the average fisherman will only be keeping one trout per trip.

The saltwater fishing license expires July 1. It is time to renew your saltwater fishing license.

This week's wonderful wise words: Voice your opinion on the proposed changes to your representatives or forever hold your peace.

Are wade fishermen an endangered species, Turtle?

Spectac-u-incredible fishing

This pro still wonders what happened to bid bass

Each year about this time, as summer begins and the water starts to warm, bass tournament pro Guy Eaker thinks back to a Florida tournament experience and wonders what if...

"I was fishing Lake Okeechobee and found bass in a really unusual location, given the conditions," remembers Eaker, a member of the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff. "The water temperature was in the high 80's but the fish were in clear, shallow water, rather than in the grass where I'd expected them to be."

While practicing, Eaker found a concentration of big fish in an area about 300 yards long. His first fish weighed about nine pounds, his second weighed eight. In all, he caught seven bass between six and nine pounds in less than it takes to tell about it.

"Naturally, I was excited and thought I could win the tournament because I'd never found a concentration of big bass like that anywhere else, and as far as I could tell, no other competitors has found these particular fish either," he remembers.

The first morning of competition, Eaker headed straight to the magic spot, and his first bass weighed just under nine pounds.

It was also the last big bass he caught there the rest of the tournament.

"From that point on, all I could catch were two-pounders," he recalls. "That first day I probably caught 30 more bass, but all were small. The next two days were the same. The big bass were either gone or just stopped biting because I never had one hit again."

"I eventually finished fifth in the tournament."

To this day, Eaker still wonders what happened. He isn't convinced the big bass ever left, but he does think the smaller fish came in during the night after his big catch and simply took over the area by virtue of sheer numbers.

"What moved the bass into that area is also a mystery," he adds. "In warm weather, water temperature and oxygen content will change bass behavior and can cause them to move."

"I know that when I first started practicing, I concentrated on the outside grassbeds where I'd often caught bass in previous tournaments. I did not catch any bass there, which is why I moved to a different location."

"Perhaps the oxygen was bad in the outside grass, but the water temperature where the big bass were was in the high 80's, which is higher than their normal comfort range. For one day those bass were extremely active. I couldn't keep my lure away from them."

"I'd just like to know what happened, because I could have had an awesome catch."

Festivals abound over holiday weekend

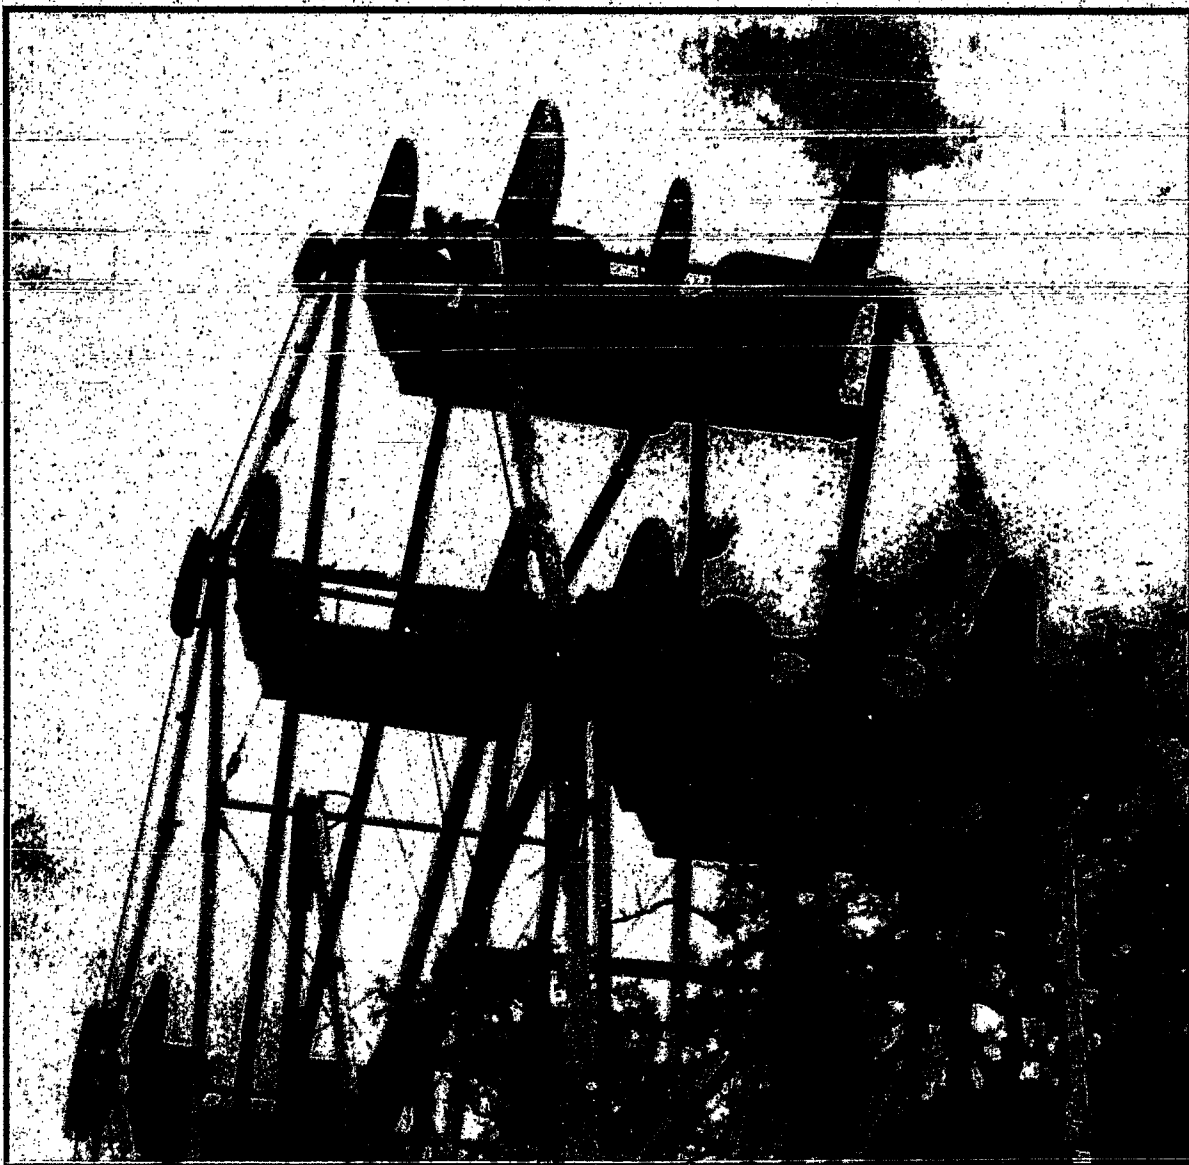

The "white elephant" booth at the Our Lady of the Gulf Crab Festival provided ample shopping opportunities.

The ferris wheel was just one of the many amusement rides that young and old alike enjoyed at the Crab Fest over the July 4th weekend.

Paula Fairconnetue, right, manned the dart booth at St. Rose de Lima Family Church Fair. The booth was very popular with the youngsters, who tried their skill at popping balloons with darts to win cherished prizes. The fair, conducted by church members, is an annual fund raiser for the church.

Numerous volunteers helped make the OLG Crab Fest an overwhelming success.

An abundance of seafood was the main attraction at the Our Lady of the Gulf Crab Fest July 1-4.

Special to the Echo
Adam Breerwood, of Bay St. Louis, was recently named to the first team All-State and All-Region 23 first team for the 1995 season. Breerwood prep-ed at St. Stanislaus High School in Bay St. Louis.

Breerwood played for the Pearl River Wildcats and led the team with a .416 batting average. That statistic tied a career record held by former St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaw Jay Artigues.

Breerwood's consistent play and power at the plate enabled him to have the choice of his college to finish out his playing career.

He chose the University of Alabama-Huntsville. Breerwood states, "I chose Alabama-Huntsville over other schools because of excellent coaching as well as providing me with the best education possible. I hope that my chance to go on to a university will open doors for many of the younger ballplayers in the area."

Keith Daniels named PRCC's interim athletic director

Pearl River Community College head football coach Keith Daniels has been named interim athletic director at Pearl River Community College. "Daniels is now in charge of the coordination and supervision of all aspects of the athletic programs at PRCC," said President Ted Alexander. The PRCC Board of Trustees unanimously approved Daniels at the regular June meeting. Daniels became Pearl River's head football coach in January.

Numbers available to report fishing violations

The Mississippi Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks is asking for the public's help in reporting fishing violations.

Members of the public can now report fishing violations directly to the Department's enforcement offices through a series of toll free telephone numbers.

Anyone witnessing a fishing violation in the coastal area may contact the Department's Marine Enforcement office in Biloxi directly by calling 1-800-294-5551 or the Department's Jackson office at 1-800-BE-SMART. If you have a Century Cellnet cellular phone, you may contact Marine Enforcement by dialing #FISH.

These numbers may be used to report commercial or recreational violations in both fresh-water and saltwater areas.

According to Marine Enforcement chief Terry Bakker, the public is in the best position to help reduce fishing violations.

"There are a lot more fishermen and private citizens on the water than Enforcement Officers. No one is in a better position than the public to help control the abuse of our resource," Bakker said.

The public may also report violations in Louisiana waters by calling 1-800-442-2511 if you are in Louisiana or 1-800-256-2749 if you are calling from out-of-state. The cellular number for Louisiana is

*GCCA. For more information, contact Chris Snyder at 385-5860.

Sun Coast Miss. State Championship washed out

Friday night's time trials, trophy dashes, heat races and bicycle races for the kids was completed under rain-threatening skies. Saturday's final round was not so fortunate.

The rain began early Saturday afternoon forcing the cancellation of the final round of the championships. The Outlaw Winged Mini Sprints were also scheduled for Saturday night's program.

The final night plus the Mini Sprints have been rescheduled for Aug. 5.

Next Saturday night will feature the Late Model Sportsman plus the "Winged" Outlaw Sprint Cars. Some 25 cars were on hand June 10 in the sprint car class.

PRCC sets orientation and registration

Pearl River Community College will hold "Fall in July" orientation and registration July 11-13 for new students attending this fall.

"This week gives new students an early start in registering for fall classes at Pearl River," said Dr. Rebecca Askew, director of guidance, recruitment and orientation. "These sessions are only for those who have never enrolled at PRCC."

New students will register according to their resident county. All new students must attend orientation beginning at 8:30 a.m. each day. Orientation and registration will end at approximately 4 p.m.

New students from Hancock, Jefferson Davis and Marion counties register Tuesday, July 11. Forrest and Lamar counties register Wednesday, July 12. Pearl River County will register Thursday, July 13.

PRCC will distribute a fall class schedule throughout the counties. The tabloid schedule contains admissions guidelines, financial aid information and a listing of courses offered in fall.

Cost of new student registration is $15 for students and $5 for parents. The fee covers lunch and is due at the door. Students can pay tuition and other college fees at orientation or in the fall.

Askew encourages parents to attend a special program where they can meet PRCC administrators, faculty and staff.
